Private Property DAVID ADAMS

Man at Work moves on

FORMER Victorian treasurer Alan Stockdale has listed his Malvern home for sale. Mr Stockdale, who was treasurer from 1992 to 1999 and has since held several senior management positions, bought the property about six years ago.

He and his wife, businesswoman Dominique Fisher, have extensively renovated it. The couple are moving to a farm on the Mornington Peninsula.

The two-storey property at 8a Mayfield Avenue has five bedrooms, a study, formal lounge and dining rooms, and a family area and billiards room at the rear. An expansive terrace has remote-controlled awnings and overlooks a swimming pool and pavilion, a triple-car garage and adjoining wine cellar.

An expressions-of-interest campaign closes on February 28 at 11.30am. Tim Derham, of Abercrombys, expects about $4 million.

Mr Stockdale, who worked in the private sector for 20 years, returned to public life in 2007, when he was appointed to the Victorian Government's first-ever position of Treasurer. He served in the role for 18 months, including overseeing the 2008-09 budget. He also worked for the Victorian Government, including with the Victorian Police and the Victorian Health Department.

The apartment at 8/1042 Broadway has two bedrooms, open-plan living and dining with walls of glass leading out to a balcony overlooking a truly unique view. There are two underground car spaces.

The auction on February 28 at 11.30am, Victoria State, of Hocking Street to 10 888a, is reporting $17.999-plus.
